HYDROPHOBIA REAL DISEASE

CONCLUSION REACHED BY GOVERNMENT SCIENTISTS.

Experiments Made the Past Summer at Bethesda Farm—Inoculation of Rabbits.

Hydrophobia is a real disease, germ-generated and infectious, despite all contentions to the contrary. Such is the conclusion reached by the government scientists at Bethesda farm, an experiment station of the Department of Agriculture in the suburbs of Washington, at which place many strange experiments have been tried during the past summer with the idea of finally settling the much-mooted question.

In two instances mad dogs have been killed in the neighborhood in the very act of terrorizing the community, and these, together with the horses and cows which they had bitten, have formed the basis of the experiments. The stricken animals have been retained at the farm, and the development of rabies has been carefully followed, aside from this microscopic examination of the dead dogs have been successfully isolated the germ which is responsible for the dread disease and this manner of test finally established the inoculation of rabbits have been made, and they have developed the disease and become rabid. A preponderance of evidence has been authoritatively piled up that finally establishes the status of the disease.

Developed in Four Months.

A strong, healthy horse that had been in detention for four months because of a bite from a mad dog developed rabies in an aggravated form last week and battered himself to death against the walls of his stall. He was one of four animals belonging to J. T. Austin of Bethesda killed by the same dog. A cow and a horse died at the end of twenty days. One horse is still alive and apparently healthy, but in detention. This case establishes the necessity of detaining an animal for a greater period than three months, which is the time ordinarily set by veterinarians.

The microscopic examination of the government scientists have tested for hydrophobia through the inoculation of some animal with a particle of the brain of the creature affected. The operation when thoroughly done is very delicate. It includes opening the brain of the animal to be used in the experiment and the introduction of a portion of the brain of the animal supposed to be affected. In the experiments tried this summer rabbits have been used altogether. When a rabbit was operated upon and inoculated a second rabbit was subjected to the same operation, with the exception of the inoculation, in order that it might at the same time demonstrate that the creature's subsequent actions were not due to the operation itself.

Experiments Duplicated.

The experiments of this summer were duplicated many times in order to develop a multitude of testimony. In every case the inoculated animal has developed rabies and died, while the fellow in the experiment has recovered and is healthy.

The last of the series terminated a week ago, resulting in the death of a dozen rabbits.

These experiments have been made by the government because of a claim that has been generally made during the past few years to the effect that hydrophobia is a mental disease. It is a disease of the mind, it has been said, and a man bitten by a mad dog and believing that a horrible death awaited him would lose his mind and become a raving maniac. It was further held that the majority of cases of dogs supposed to be suffering from hydrophobia were affected with sunstroke or poison.

The scientists now, having positively recorded cases of the development of rabies in healthy horses, having isolated the germ, and having demonstrated that the disease is a real disease in a great number of cases to other animals, believe they have established beyond any doubt the fact that the cause of the disease is a virus.

The fear of dog days is entirely justified. As a sole remedy they recommend the suppression of the dog.

CRITICIZES THE MAN.

Court Believes He Is Most Independent Man in Washington.

"They are the most independent men in Washington," said Judge Kimball in the District branch of the Police Court today in speaking of the women of the Capital City.

The remark was made when James T. Trice of 1910 11th street northwest was arraigned upon a charge of disturbing the peace in the city to the rear of his residence and allowed it to stay there several hours before being emptied by the police.

EXCEEDS HALF MILLION

AMOUNT NEEDED FOR IMPROVEMENTS IN NORTHWEST.

The first meeting of the Northwest Suburban Citizens' Association since the summer vacation was held last night at Tenleytown, D. C., at which the most important business was the report of the executive committee, which estimated that $500,000 will be needed for improvements in that section. This estimate was indorsed by the association last night and is to be presented to the Commissioners for consideration.

The improvement suggested consisted of the betterment and opening of highways, the construction of main and lateral sewers and repairs and extension of streets.

An election of officers was held, which resulted in all of the old officers being re-elected, as follows: President, Charles C. Lancaster; first vice president, James L. Tait; second vice president, J. E. Shoemaker; third vice president, John W. Chappell; fourth vice president, A. M. Ray; fifth vice president, Prof. Louis L. Hooper; treasurer, S. McComas Hawken; secretary, Galen L. Tait, and sergeant-at-arms, Andrew Burka. The members of the executive committee, also re-elected for another year, are: Louis P. Shoemaker, chairman; James Sharr, Horace S. Jones, William B. Ireland, Galen L. Tait, A. E. Shoemaker, E. H. Ashworth, Dr. J. W. Chappell, William L. Crounse, James A. Finch and A. M. Ray.

Disapproval Expressed.

Several members expressed disapproval of the manner in which inspections in the suburban sections are carried on. A resolution extending to property owners in the suburbs an invitation to join the association was passed.

Louis P. Shoemaker, in referring to a resolution endorsing Horace S. Jones for the position of superintendent of county roads, said that men from Minnesota, California and other far-off states at present have supervision in the suburban sections, and it is time for the association to act, and to see to it that some property owner, some man known to the members, secures the post.

The resolution endorsing Mr. Jones was adopted.

The report of the executive committee of the association made recommendations for the approval of the association and to be transmitted to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, to be included in their annual estimates to Congress for appropriations for the fiscal year 1909, as follows:

Service Sewers.

For the construction of lateral service sewers in the northwest suburbs, $100,000; for extending a service sewer along the west side of Rock Creek and Broad Branch road to Piney Branch sewer, $50,000; for service sewer from the intersection of Broad Branch road and Capstone valley along the west side of Broad Branch road to the District line, including a branch or lateral sewer to Connecticut avenue following the stream which crosses the avenue between Livingston street and Keokuk street, $55,000.

Construction and repair of suburban streets and county roads. For grading and macadamizing Massachusetts avenue from Rock Creek to the District line, $50,000; for widening Connecticut avenue extended from Pierce Mill road to Grant road, $10,000; for opening and grading Albemarle street from Wisconsin avenue to Connecticut avenue, $15,000; for opening and grading Albemarle street from Connecticut avenue to Broad Branch road, $20,000; for grading and macadamizing streets in American University Park and Wesley Park, $16,000; for grading and macadamizing the schoolhouse road, $10,000; for widening and regulating Broad Branch road to District line, $5,000; for widening Rock Creek road, $2,000; for completing the grading and macadamizing of Rittenhouse street from Broad Branch road to District line, $3,000; for macadamizing Western avenue from Rittenhouse street to Chevy Chase circle, $1,000; for widening and regulating Chappell road or 38th street, $1,500; for repairs of roadway west of Rock Creek not permanent highways, $45,000; for the condemnation of the right of way to open Albemarle street from Grant road to Wisconsin avenue, for which legislation is recommended during the next session of Congress, $5,000.

Public Schools.

For remodeling the front of the public school building in Tenleytown and to enlarge the same to accommodate a manual training school, a cooking school, a dressmaking school and a kindergarten, $40,000.

The kindergarten, the cooking, manual training and dressmaking schools are now crowded into two small rooms, known as the annex, formerly St. Ann's Church, which is destitute of every feature for which it is now used, besides being insanitary and unsightly.

Therefore, we recommend an addition of a four-room building to properly accommodate the above schools, to preserve the health of the children in attendance and to render the efforts of the teachers more effective.

For the construction of one eight-room building for white children on Grant road west of Connecticut avenue, $30,000.

Electric lights—For erecting electric lights on Chappell road or 38th street, $500.

Rock Creek bridge, for widening, grading and macadamizing new roads, erection of bridges and lights in Rock Creek Park, $100,000.

Total, $533,000.

Appeal to Absent Boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldberg have sent out an earnest appeal to their son Joseph, who disappeared several days ago, to return to his home. They say if he has left the city and cannot pay his fare home money will be sent him. They also promise to fully forgive the boy for leaving home.

Change in Disbursing Methods.

Planning to simplify the system of payments of wages to laborers and for payments of team hire for work done for the District engineering department the Commissioners have agreed upon a change in the methods of the disbursing office. Hereafter it has always been necessary to prepare separate bills for each day's work, which bills were then presented to the retail dealers throughout the district. Several groceries and provision stores in this town do a business of $1,000,000 a year and one has a trade of over $2,000,000. The miners get good wages, but live well. They want the best. In addition to the regular imports that come on "car days," the retail merchants pay from $4,000 to $5,000 a year in express charges upon small packages of emergency supplies from Chicago and other markets. They have to import everything except potatoes and fish.

Next to Richest County.

This is the second richest county in Michigan, although one of the smallest in area and one of the most sparse in population.

Thirty-Two Mines in the Vicinity.

Millions Expended in Development Without a Dividend.

BY WILLIAM E. CURTIS.

Special Correspondence of The Star and The Chicago Record-Herald.

HOUGHTON, Mich., September 27, 1907.

This is a copper town. Almost everybody here makes, buys, sells, talks, thinks and dreams copper, and the inhabitants do very little else. They don't raise vegetables enough to feed themselves, because there is more money in copper. If you see two men with their heads together on the street you may be sure that they are talking copper. If you see a man going into a bank or coming out of it you may be certain that he has either sold or bought stock in some copper mine. The main street of the town, and there is only one street, is lined with handsome cottages and villas built with the proceeds of copper mining and the profits of speculation in copper stocks. I walked along the sidewalk with a friend yesterday as far as the College of Mines, while he told me where this man and the next, and their neighbors, made the money to buy or build their beautiful homes, and it was invariably from copper on the hill.

The advertisements in the newspapers of Houghton and vicinity contain offers to buy or sell mining stock, and expatiate upon the advantages of purchasing or selling shares in different companies, just as the newspapers of other cities announce the bargains that may be found at the department stores. The reading pages are devoted to news from copper mines, always from different parts of the world, and on Saturdays and Sundays the supplements are filled with descriptions of new copper mines and stories of old ones.

Newspaper's Unique Experience.

The Mining Gazette, the Houghton daily, is the only newspaper I know that prints more copies than there are people in the town, and that also is accounted for by the copper craze. The population of Houghton is 4,500; the circulation of the Mining Gazette is 7,500, and two-thirds of the copies go outside the town to subscribers who are interested in the operations. The proprietor of the Gazette publishes separate editions in the neighboring towns of Hancock and Calumet for local news and mine gossip.

Hancock has a newspaper called the Weekly Teddy. In honor of
